AROUND THE WORLD IN 1970

Scene I

In the shadows of a deserted New York corner lighted only by the faint glow of a lone street lamp huddles a small group. Two hurrying figures (Martha Ann, Jean) approach.

Martha Ann: What's going on? Why were we called?

Martha: The will has been stolen! I received an anonymous tip. There was a message at the foot of this lamp. "Ship leaving at midnight for London. Be on it! signed Jacques the First."

Anna: Well, I guess we have no choice but to go. Mum's the word!

Scene II

As the sun slowly sets on the wide, wide ocean, the mysterious group stands aboard the U.S.S. Daddy Cool, Daddy Cool with its captain, Chris French.

Kay: What a dinner! Those cooks—Peggy Agee, Charles Watson, and Joan Conrad—certainly did a good job.

Martha: Look at this fortune cookie. "Help! I'm being held prisoner in Bob Gill's cookie factory! signed Jim Baker."

Jean: Who are those waitresses standing over there in the corner? They look like Gladys Henry, Patricia Crews, Nina Ann Stokes, Norma Knutton, and Martha Evans.

Anna: You're right! And don't those porters look familiar; Jerry Russell, Franklin Gamble, Bobby Thomas, Steve Averitt, and Larry Zimmerman.

Martha Ann: Ssh! What's that noise? (splash, splash, splash) Hey, look out the porthole. That's Lynn Smither swimming the Atlantic again in hopes of winning the Lanny Skidmore cup!

Kay: I got a copy of the passenger list from the social director, Susan Abernethy. Let's see whether there are any suspicious characters. Here are Jimmy Brown, who just bought the Brooklyn Bridge; David Cobb, the famous piccolo player, traveling to Spain to give a concert; Shirley Dixon's band with Rolland Houston, Jerry Essic, Johnny Martin, Frankie McGehee, David Goode, and Virginia Griffith; Kay Kirby and John Hopkins, who recently invented a cigaretteless filter; Chris Chandell, Vance Cordell, Grady Chapman, and Wayne Burton, going to the convention of Jack Marshbank's Toothbrush Company; Harry Clark and Ann Marshall, master tree surgeons, on their way to see a patient; Swiss cuckoo clock investors—Judy Johnson, Paul Rollins, Edna Earle Brown, and Richard Davis; here are Gay Todd, Martha Leak McKenzie, Linda Stockton, and Robin Shahan, who head the Anti-Noise Crusade; and Larry Chapman, Charlotte Cranfill, and Audrey Anthony—leaders of the campaign for the abolition of rhetorical principles.

Martha: On the next page are listed Merry Gordon Pannill, Will Reynolds, Jean Hauser, and Mike Sprinkle, the foreign representatives from Jaguar, Incorporated; Walton Avery, chaperoning the Sam Allen Glee Club members: Sandra Clouse, Nancy Trivette, Helyn Bost, Julia Carr, and Marilee Conrad.

Anna: Back here is Don Shaffner, the world-renowned butterfly collector, traveling to Africa to join Judy Koelmel and Sandra Ivey's safari.

Jean: I don't think any of those people would have stolen the will. Let's see whether we can get a clue from this copy of the Class History I've brought along:

Having floundered our way through the eighth grade, we embarked upon our freshman year with star-filled eyes and high hopes of untold glories. Let by Judy Heinz, our class president, we were first introduced to student government through our representative "Butch" Brown. Other up-and-coming leaders among us were Cathy Little and Randy Wilson, Teen-age Council members; Bucky Buckalew, president of the HiY; and Anne Marshall, president of the YTeens.

Abandoning "The Ancient Mariner" for our newfound friends, Silas and Julius, we, as sophomores, were torn between 202 and 218. During this year we began to take a more active part in school organizations. Our class officers were Bobby Chambers, president; Wilfred Turner, vice-president; Carolyn Benbow, secretary; and Anna Bair, treasurer; while our representatives in the House and Council were Wilfred Turner and Peggy Cryner, respectively.

Also claiming a large part of our time were extracurricular activities. Among the aspiring journalists who labored faithfully over their editions were Phyllis Hayes, Julie Goodwin, and Ann Travis. Nearby, lilting strains of music floated from the chorus room, where Nancy Bowers, Deanna Thomas, Sue and Sally Schell, and Martha Talley were exercising their vocal chords. From Hanes Field came the shouts of varisty football players Bob Voorhees and Eddie Pleasants, majorettes Ann Vance and Ruth Thomas, and drum major Bobby Mayer. From the gym came waves of applause as Sandy Sheets was crowned basketball homecoming queen.

June, July August...and at last were were upperclassmen! For us it was the year of inductions: among those tapped by the National Honor Society were Norris Johnston, Emma Jean Zimmerman, Louise Efird, Mike Robertson, Charles Elkins and Jim Hart; by the Quill and Scroll, Mary Louise Hurst, Merry Gordon Pannill, and Judy Heinz; and by the Masque and Gavel, Johnny Clinard. New members of the Senior Service Club included Gaither Lewis and Neal Lowrance; Barry Cook, Jerome Shapiro, and other juniors were selected to become members of the Key Club; while David Page, Johnny Morrow, and Fred Fowler were some of the athletes in the Monogram Club.

We juniors were also very prominent in the administration of our honor system. Leaders in the House and Council were Sarah Ebert, Kathryn Garner, Chris French, and Eddie Pleasants.

In the spring the Senior Class selected several of our girls to be Senior Marshals. Anne Newton, Beebe Davis, and Joann Hanks were among those chosen. Also in the spring came the unforgettable Junior-Senior, successfully managed by our class officers, Bobby Chambers, Ralph Bender, Carolyn Benbow, and Wilfred Turner, who were ably assisted by committee members Kathy Norfleet and Sandy Sheets. Another junior attaining success and distinction was Norton Tennille, who was elected Governor of Boys' State.

Time passed swiftly and finally we were seniors! Leading us through 1957-1958, the era of Sputnik, Muttnik, and In-school Television, were our class officers, Bill Farrell, president; Ralph Bender, vice-president; Peggy Cryner, secretary; and Ran Shaffner, treasurer. Working along with them were Jerry Evans and Norton Tennille, president and vice-president of the school; Anna Bair and Alice Grant, Speaker and Speaker Pro-tempore of the House of Representatives; Martha Eller, editor of Pine Whispers, and Kay Angel, editor of the Black and Gold. Other leaders were Jimmy Manuel, Jim Hitchcock, and Frank Saunders, three of the Senior Executive Committee members; Wilson Carter, head of the chorus; Betty Earp, president of the Y-Teens; Carolyn Jarvis, chairman of the Resegis; Randy Wilson, head of the Senior Service Club; Martha Ann Myers, president of the College Club; Bill Jackson, president of the National Honor Society; and Kiki Voss and Jean Clary, president and vice-president of the Girls' Athletic Association.

We eagerly counted the days as they raced by and just as eagerly followed our football team on to a winning season. Led by co-captains Cecil Holcomb and Linwood Davis and inspired by Anna Conrad, football homecoming queen, the team captured second place in the conference. During this time the majorettes, headed by their chief, Julie Blackwood, and the band kept up school spirit and won admirers throughout the state. Anna Bair, chief, Carolyn Benbow, assistant chief, Joann Hanks, Beverly Bunn, Martha Payne, Kiki Voss, Beebe Davis, and Alice Grant directed the cheers.

Children's Home, led by Bill Davidson, Jerry Murdock, Weldon Brigman, and John Speight, had one of its best football season. Urging them on to victory were cheerleaders Mary Ann Poteete, Mary McKinney, and Mary Davis.

After mid-term exams we suddenly realized that our high school life was almost over. Basketball, spring sports, the Junior-Senior, final exams, the senior picnic, and Class Day raced by; graduation was upon us.

Martha Ann: No help there either. What shall we do now?

Kay: Quiet! The lights are being dimmed; it's time for the entertainment: Sonya "Bubbles" Robertson with her sparkling music makers, and the Smiths—Doris, Tommy, Jean, and Jerry—singing Ted Buddine's "Rhapsody in Dreamland."

(Jean leaves and returns with a note.)

Jean: Hmmm—Here's a note the steward just gave me. "Glad you made the boat on time; now don't be late to Big Ben! signed Jacques the Second."

Martha: Well, it won't be long now; the boat is ready to dock.

Scene III

A cool, misty fog envelops a busy London street. (Anna, Martha Ann, Martha, and Kay enter.)

Anna: I never thought I'd see Buckingham Palace and Carlos Lewis, Bill Buell, and Bobby Sale, as some of the guards.

Martha Ann: There go a group of foreign dignitaries to meet the Queen. I can see Becky Fox, Michael Mock, Phillip Nanzetta, Tera Frizzelle, and Cole Bessonette.

(Jean enters.)

Jean: Oh, those tourists! I ran into Richard Spainhour, Judy Crews, Benny Plitt, and Carol Hester in a party led by Emma Lee Caldwell. They were crowding into Norma Jean McMillan's book store to get an autograph from Talmadge Lane, the famous author of Adventures of Bill Hunter. In the crowd I also saw Margaret Hobson, Ann Shelton, Henry Capps, Amy Maya, and Helen Shore—all congratulating him.

Kay: That's a strange-looking contraption. Anna, go see what those men are doing with it.

(Anna leaves and returns.)

Anna: You'll never guess! Jerry Lackey, Chip Johnson, and Meb Davis are testign fog with a new machine invented by K. T. Thomas, Katherine Jones, and Sally Ann Chapple.

Jarhead, Thanks for working for me at school for initiation of the "S. S. C. Don't bust that head at base hills swimming hotel. See you out there. Allen Harris

Martha: There goes Elizabeth McCanless and Estie Honeycutt. I remember now. They're appearing at the Palladium this week with Phillip Melvin's Wild West Show. Isn't Mary Wolfe Maddrey's acrobatic troupe, with Glenyce Pass, Judy Vermilya, Betty Horton, Bob Rike, and Richard Payne, appearing there next week?

Martha Ann: If we have time later on, let's go to Suzan Douglas' Tea Room and have tea and crumpets. Edna McCarthy, Jeannie Church, Carlene Elliot, and Ann Sheets are going in now.

Jean: I wonder whether they serve that new brand of instant crumpet mix manufactured by Doug Walker and Tommy Butner?

Kay: Wait a minute! What are Bobby Stafford and Ronald Brewer doing:

Anna: That sign says, "Pardon the inconvenience. We are flipping the highways over so the British will be driving on the right side of the road."

Martha: Oh, my aching feet! Here we are at Big Ben at last! Let's go up in the tower and see what makes this clock tick. Kay, ask the watchman where the will might be hidden.

Kay: Hey, you! Why it's Cecil Holcomb, keeping up with the time at last! Cec, have you seen any suspicious characters lurking about? Prying at the number six, you say? Let's take a look.

Martha Ann: You're right, but it's only another note. "I know what you want—you want the will. You'll find it at the base of the Eiffel Tower. signed Jacques the Tihrd."

All: Oh, no!!!

Scene IV

(Our group is walking towards the Eiffel Tower)

Anna: How about that activity up there? Surely was a rough flight! It really wasn't the pilot's fault, though; Wayland Blake tried to do his best, and John Speight did keep us on the right course.

Martha: Let's stop at that sidewalk cafe and relax for a minute. We've been rushing so much; shall we take a couple of hours and just see the sights here in Paris?

Kay: I've always wanted to go to the Follies. I understand there's a matinee today at two o'clock. How about going?

All: O. K.

Jean: Wish we had time to see a fashion show. Say, here come some models wearing clothes from the collection of famous fashion designer, Eddie Thompson—Nancy Startsman, Peggy Miller, Jean McDowell, Aurelia Gibson, and Linda Hardie.

Martha Ann: I'd love to have a sketch made; let's go next door to that artist who's showing some of her pictures. I think it is Jackie Steele; you all just look around out here.

(Martha Ann leaves.)

Anna: She must specialize in portraits. Those are of Bill Avery, Betty Ptacek, Virginia Key, Jim Beard, and Steve Calaway; and isn't that a remarkable likeness of Mary Alice Roberts.

Martha; Look what I found! This one is called "Landing Forces at Reynolds High School," picturing, I think, Bob Voorhees, Brooks Haworth, Jerry Davis, and Mac Jones.

(Martha Ann re-enters.)

Martha Ann: The sketch is finished. Don't you think it is good?

Jean: What do I hear? Great balls of fire, it's the French Foreign Legion, returning for a parade in honor of their hero, Ronnie Wise. Look at all those Legionnaires out of step—John Curlee, Howard Kelly, Bobby Loyd, Charles Bowden, and Gary Long.

Kay: It's almost two o'clock. We'd better hurry down the street to the Follies. I'm afraid we have time for only the first act; we'll have to miss the others.

Anna: Ssssh, look who's on the stage—Betty Earp is delivering one of her famous lectures, "The Importance of the French language in Outer Space Research."

Martha: I can't understand a word she's saying; and, anyway, our time is running out. Let's go on to the Tower and find that will.

(Group continues on its way toward the tower.)

Martha Ann: My program from the Follies says that the next act was a chorus line featuring Judy Butler, Patricia Ann Myers, Gayle Bull, Linda Kirby, and Carolyn Morgan. And following them we would have seen Paul Heist and Fred Fowler's flea circus.

(The group arrives at the Eiffel Tower.)

Jean: Now that we're here at this old tower, does anyone have a suggestion as to where the will may be hidden? No? Well, start looking!

Kay: Here it is! No, it's just another message. "Your wish may come true if you use your three coins in Rome. signed Jacques the Fourth."

Scene V

Having decided that the clue referred to the well-known wishing fountain, the group has proceeded to Rome and now stands near the fountain pondering the location of the document.

Anna: Now what?

Martha: Where could the will be hidden in this fountain?

Jean: How can you read a newspaper at a time like this, Martha Ann?

Martha Ann: I was reading about the Olympics being held in Athens now. I notice some Reynolds graduates are over with our U. S. team. The article mentions Billy Weaver, Jimmy Moore, Dot Cox, Bonnie Dowell, Carolyn Carriker, and Ann Poley.

Kay: Hey, look over there. I believe it's Charles Elkins and Nicky Daves. It looks as if they're going to Monte Carlo to visit the royal family.

Anna: Yes, and, as we passed Homer Snow's Jam Factory, did you see Don Crater, Kay Brown, Diane Tuttle, Charles Holder, and Wanda Neal, trampling grapes?

Martha: How could I miss those purple feet! I also noticed Clara Jane Buchanan, Jane Travis, Robert Carter, and Julia Hobson, drying noodles in the sun for Lucy Rudolph's Spaghetti Company.

Martha Ann: Look! That vender is selling pizza pies. I'm going to get one.
(Martha Ann leaves.)

Kay: Wish I had brought my rod and reel as those people did. Looks as if Julian McKenzie, Benny Parks, and Joe Bass are enjoying the sport, even if they aren't catching fish.

Jean: Egads! What are those! Deep sea divers! (Jean points to the orchestra pit.)

Anna: It's John Tuttle, Mike Davis, Stan Hutcheson, and Johnny Johnson; and there's Ronald Enders, gathering information for his fish directory.
(Martha Ann returns.)

Martha Ann: You'd never guess who is vending those pizzas—Steve Moore! And Carolyn Baugh, Hubert Collins, Marjorie Harp, Barbara Mabe, and Carol Munroe were helping him make them. But that was the worst pizza I've ever eaten! Look what I bit into! (Martha Ann starts to throw away the pie.)

Martha: Wait! What's that note attached to it?

Jean: It reads, "Forget it! This has gone fare enough. Here's your will. signed Jacques the Fifth. P. S. Jokette!"
All: We've found it!
Martha:

LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT

"Time marches on," and too soon, we have found,
Old "Pomp and Circumstance" sadly will sound,
But ere we depart from our dear Demon hill,
We wish to leave you our Senior Class will:

To you, Mr. Joyner, our leader and friend,
Abundant good wishes we heartily send;
To faculty, faithful and patient, we give
Our gratitude, lasting as long as we live.

Miss Stephenson, Senior class sponsor, for you:
Our thanks for the aid and encouragement, too.
And to all who have helped us to travel our way
A gracious, big "Thank you," we warmly would say.

Juniors, we leave as the year fast is finishing
Senior class privileges, slowly diminishing;
To all of you girls who persistently grapple
With calorie counters, now Bunn leaves an apple.

Neil Williams, great skill with the basketball
Tommy Smith leave you, the crowds to enthrall;
Benni her "Big Three Notes" leaves to Kay;
Peyton and Leech simply leave it to Jay.

Louie and Kiki, who'll rock 'till the end,
Sadly leave bugging to Kenneth and Bren;
To Broadus and Shorty we leave brooms and soap;
"Blossom" will leave her slow drawl—we hope!

Fred Fowler and Earp their height, they believe,
To Don Foltz and Martha Marler will leave;
Bill Davidson leaves to the boys his "snow"
With hopes that as much of success they may know.

Miss Stephenson's homeroom your sorrow entreats,
And leaves to Dave Blanco those good chapel seats;
And to all the juniors we now leave with pities
A ragged "Aeneid" and "A Tale of Two Cities."

And also to you, TV history, (good grief!),
We leave with tired hands and a sigh of relief;
We give you with grace to "that long tall man"
And trust you will end up an Edinger fan.

May you have commercials and note-taking rests,
And freedom from Coach Wilson's fatal "snap tests."
And for good Mr. Mitchell a set that won't fade,
And a summer of ease with no papers to grade.

Bill Farrell leaves boots and a trusty old gun,
We all leave a year packed with hard work and fun,
With mingled emotions our class now departs
And leaves you a school, very dear to our hearts.
